City of Cincinnati—The Office of Councilman Charlie Winburn

The Winburn Wrap-Up

Winburn Fights for Jobs

Hello All!

It has been an exciting month at City Council. The Job Creation Committee continues to work hard to get Cincinnatians back to work.

Over the past month the Job Creation Committee has been working on Cincinnati's Empowerment Zone. At the end of 2009, the city administration allowed $130 million in federal bonds specifically for the use of business expansion and job creation to expire. Cincinnati businesses were denied the opportunity to benefit from expanding their businesses and creating good paying jobs with these low interest loans. I need your help to show the city administration that this error is unacceptable. I encourage you to get involved in the process of turning our city around by attending our Job Creation committee every other Monday at City Council. The next meeting of the Job Creation Committee will be held on March 15 at 1:00 P.M. The committee is open to the public in Council Chambers at City Hall.

This past month I was able to attend numerous events all across the city. I attended the AMOS Project: Nehemiah Campaign kickoff where the goal is to get Cincinnatians back to work. Thank you all the other groups who hosted me over the past month.

Also this past month the City of Cincinnati held the 2010 Neighborhood Summit. Here over 600 citizens worked towards establishing Cincinnati's first comprehensive plan in over 30 years. Thank you to Mayor Mark Mallory, Vice Mayor Roxanne Qualls, and Xavier University for hosting such a great event.

Thanks a Million!

Community Spotlight—Walnut Hills

Walnut Hills is a neighborhood bordered on the south by Eden Park, on the west by Reading Road and Interstate 71, on the east by Victory Parkway, and on the north by the intersection of Interstate 71 and Victory Parkway.

This diverse neighborhood is home to educational institutions such as Walnut Hills High School and Xavier University. The community is also home to the legendary Harriet Beecher Stowe House. This historic house has been recognized as a freedom center/partner for its commitment to educating communities about freedoms.

This area also boasts the Walnut Hills Area Council.

It was founded in 1965 as a voice to represent the interests of the community. The council meets at 6:30 on the second Thursday of every month at the Frederick Douglass Elementary School at 2627 Park Avenue. For more information visit <http://walnuthills.us/>.

Winburn Tours Super Jobs Center

This past month Councilman Winburn was able to tour the city's Super Jobs Center on Central Parkway. President Sherry Kelley Marshall took Charlie and his staff around the center to show how they are putting Cincinnatians back to work.

The Super Jobs Center holds regular job fairs and business service seminars. At the center, area residents can get assistance with resume development, business training, and job placement services. The Super Jobs center is known for connecting job seekers with present employers.

Cincinnati Home & Garden Show- Mar. 6&7, 10-14

Starting March 6 and lasting until March 14, the Duke Energy Convention Center will be host to the annual Fifth Third Bank Cincinnati Home & Garden Show presented by the Cincinnati/Northern Kentucky Honda Dealers.

Thousands of area residents use this expo every year as inspiration for their local beautification projects such as their yards and green spaces.

Hundreds of area professionals will show their expertise in areas such as Gardening, Home Exhibitions, Arboriculture and Horticulture. Exhibits will also include Decorative greenery, equipment for gardens, hand and motor garden tools, biological and chemical products, glasshouses, lighting and hydro technology, equipment for parks, and children's playgrounds.

There will also be a variety of seminars at this year's show. Most seminars will start between 1 P.M. and 6 P.M.

This year's keynote seminar will be by special guest Tim Carter. His "Ask the Builder" sessions will focus on home remodeling and improvement. Tim still writes weekly columns and produces self help videos. You can view these columns and videos about "Ask the Builder" at Tim's website at www.askthebuilder.com

Admission for the event is $11, children 13 year's of age or younger are free.
